UNIVERSITY OF PUERTO RICO GENERAL REGULATIONS

STATEMENT OF PRINCIPLES

The University of Puerto Rico, as an institution of higher education, is the repository of the highest aspirations of the Puerto Rican people. As such, its responsibility is to participate actively in the search for and dissemination of the truth, in the preservation, enrichment, and advancement of our values, in the full development of our youth, in the development of intellectual and spiritual wealth within our people, as well as in the examination and analysis of the grave issues that concern them. One of the most important tasks that pertain to our University is to study objectively the projections for the future development of our people, so that our decisions, democratically reached, may be as correct as possible.

As part of the integrated system of higher education at the service of the people, and as a corporate body with the authority, among others, to enter into contracts and to sue or be sued, the University constitutes a single legally responsible entity. The realization of its objectives requires the undivided support and loyalty of all those who study and work within its walls. The regulations regarding human resources at the University, while recognizing the working autonomy of the institutional units, must provide solidarity, uniformity, and structure in its application.

CHAPTER I

In addition, these Regulations are founded on the merit principle established by Law No. 5 of October 14, 1975, known as Personnel Act of Puerto Rico, as amended.
